Revolutionary Prisoners Brought Here on Halifax Cartel.

Today Is the 125 Anniversary of Their Landing.

January 11 1907

Messrs. Editors:—Hon. John J. Babson the historian in his "Notes and Additions," makes brief mention of the fact that in 1782, a cartel bound from Halifax to Boston, with prisoners of war to be exchanged, had cause to come to anchor in Gloucester harbor, where her passengers were landed and cared for in their sickness, and later, no doubt went on their way to their several places of residence, rejoicing over the fact that the long bitter war with the mother country had ended with victory for the colonies, and that having suffered the horrors of British prison pens, were now free men, in a country where all men were declared to be free and equal.

Today marks the 125th anniversary for this important event, for it was on January 11th, 1782, that this cartel with her precious freight of humanity, came sailing round Eastern Point, and after being boarded by a health officer, (for even at that time no foreign craft could waive this formality) the selectmen gave orders for the landing of the passengers.

It does not appear that the historian looked upon the passenger list of this cartel as a document of much importance, else he would have incorporated the same in his notes. Fortunately this list, which has never yet been published, has been preserved, and although somewhat yellow with age may yet be read with comparative ease.

With the thought that possibly at the present time when genealogical research is being prosecuted with vigor in every hamlet and town which boasts of an historic past, it may help solve some of the questions involved in a study of the Revolutionary period, we present the document below:

The list may be found at the City Hall, in a paper covered memorandum book kept by the selectmen from 1781 to 1783, and is as follows:

A List of Sundry People, and the Towns to which they belong, Landed out of a Carteele from Halifax, Bound to Boston, but by Reason of Sickness the Select Men was oblgd to Take them on Shoar to Gloucester, and Provide for them: viz:—

Seth Cartwright	of Nantucket

Joseph Hooker	do
Thoms Weller	Wells

Joseph Greenleff	Newburyport

John Pery	Manchester
Benjmi Redin	Marblehead

Nowhere in the document are we told of the nature of the sickness which caused the vessel to bear up for Gloucester, when within a little more than 30 miles from the port to which she was bound. That it was serious enough we may be sure, else her passengers would not have landed. For one of them it was a coming to God's country only to die, for in the town's account against the commonwealth which was rendered under date of April 26, 1782, I find one coffin specified. This account is made out in the handwriting of "John Low, per order of the selectmen," and is as fine a specimen of old time accounts as one would wish to see, and although undoubtedly done with a hand pointed quill would put to blush some of the efforts of an expert in penmanship of the present day and of improved facilities.

The account rendered is for supplies furnished, and is as follows:

The Gloucester Dalton, whose account above called for 33 pounds, was, if I am not mistaken, a black, and may have been the one referred to by Babson, in writing of the Ellery family—John Ellery, son by the first first William, a sea captain, who in his will provided for the giving of freedom to his negro man servant named Gloucester. Possibly his pay may have been for watching.

Two other cartels, other than the above noted, landed their passengers at Gloucester, one being piloted into Annisquam harbor, under stress of weather by one of the Gloucester prisoners on board. The other landed her men at the old town landing, foot of Washington street, and it is claimed that so weak were some of the men that they made their way from the vessel on hands and knees, assisted by their friends. No list of these men have been preserved.

A fourth cartel, having on board Capt. Coas of the privateer Stark fame, was lost as supposed while but a few hours out of Halifax with all on board, including a number of Gloucester men.

Lest there be any misunderstanding as to the use of the word "cartel" let me in closing add this: It does not refer to a particular type of vessel, but in this case only to a war vessel which was used for an exchange of prisoners between warring states or nations therefor free from molestation. The term was used also in referring to a document which had the same end in view—the exchange of prisoners; and also when sending a challenge to combat.
